I do have an interest in parking in Gosport & especially Church Path. We purchased no 40 for our son, who has hearing disabilities in part because it has residents parking - most of these spaces are occupied these days mainly by occupants of the flats. The rest of the car park is well used particularly when there is an event & of course on Sundays & church occasions.

General comments re parking —

1) As you have pointed out there has to be adequate parking to provide access to High Street services + shopping. How is this to be achieved by building houses on most of the existing car parks??

2) You point out, also, many homes do not have nearby parking. Taking away the existing parking spaces + then building houses on them will surely increase this number. Is that really a good idea??

3) While improving the waterfront + sorting out the bus station sounds good but who is going to come to admire + enjoy the new improved Gosport if there is nowhere to park??

4) What is wrong with a bit of open space even if it is car park rather than more + more built up areas??
